

Corteva Agriscience™ Stakeholder Sustainability Statement - 2018

Executive Summary

The purpose of this document is to provide stakeholders with an overview of the corporate responsibility and sustainability goal-setting process for Corteva Agriscience™, the Agriculture Division of DowDuPont.

Background

Corteva Agriscience™ is the Agriculture Division of DowDuPont, formed upon completion of the merger between Dow and DuPont on August 31, 2017. DowDuPont intends to create¹ three strong, independent, industry-leading companies in Agriculture, Materials Science, and Specialty Products. Completion of the spin-offs is expected to occur by June 1, 2019.

Dow and DuPont both have a strong legacy of sustainability leadership and action. We are committed to carrying those legacies forward by continuing to drive sustainable innovation that helps to bring progress and prosperity for future generations. Each of the new intended companies will develop corporate responsibility and sustainability strategies, as well as stakeholder communications appropriate to their unique markets and business models. In the meantime, we invite our stakeholders to visit the following websites for information on our sustainability programs, goals, and reports:

About Corteva Agriscience™

Corteva Agriscience™ will offer a complete portfolio of products and technologies, and a robust pipeline of germplasm, traits and crop protection. The combined heritage and complementary capabilities of DuPont Crop Protection, Pioneer and Dow AgroSciences will make the future, intended Agriculture Company stronger, more competitive, and better equipped to deliver growth and value.

Our Approach to Corporate Responsibility and Sustainability

Shortly after completion of the merger of Dow and DuPont in August 2017, Corteva senior leadership approved the formation of a cross-functional Sustainability Steering Committee (the “Committee”). The Committee is comprised of representatives from each Corteva business platform and key functions. Representatives from both heritage Dow and Dupont are also on the Committee to ensure full view of historical approaches and future opportunities. The purpose of the Committee is to provide guidance for the development of corporate responsibility and sustainability policies and positions, as well as goal and disclosure strategy for the pure play agricultural company Corteva will become.

The corporate responsibility and sustainability policies, goals, and disclosure practices of heritage Dow and DuPont reflected the diversity of their full business portfolios. To facilitate an understanding of stakeholder sustainability expectations for a pure play agricultural company, Corteva is conducting a comprehensive non-financial materiality assessment in 2018.

As part of this assessment, we are examining global food and agriculture sustainability frameworks, industry standards, the sustainability goals and policies of food and consumer goods companies, and conducting engagement and outreach sessions with a range of stakeholders throughout the food system. The results of this analysis will help Corteva align its strategy with evolving stakeholder sustainability expectations and serve as a foundational input into Corteva's future corporate responsibility strategy, goals, and disclosure approach.

In addition to the non-financial materiality assessment, internal working teams have formed to understand the integration processes and timelines for key functions and systems that traditionally support external sustainability goals and disclosure. We anticipate Corteva's ability to set quantifiable, time bound goals and disclose progress and performance information post-spin will be dependent upon broader merger-to-spin integration of data systems and establishing baselines for the new company.

Commitment to Transparency

Corteva Agriscience is committed to transparency with our stakeholders and we look forward to sharing more information as our journey progresses. We encourage our interested stakeholders to direct comments, questions, or engagement requests to:
